

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL PRESENTS:
MASTER OF ARTS IN HISTORY

HISTORIA EST VITAE MAGISTRA: HISTORY IS LIFE'S TEACHER.

The CU Denver History Department offers a 37-hour Master of Arts degree. Graduate students in history develop skills in critical thinking, writing, and independent research, with opportunities to engage in multiple communities outside the University through internships and public history projects.

CAREER PATHS OF GRADUATES

The CU Denver History MA prepares students for a wide variety of professions, including teaching, government service, non-profits, business, museum and archive management, and historic preservation, as well as further degree work in history, law, and librarianship.

WHY CHOOSE CU DENVER?

Although we live in the present, we are products of many different pasts that come together to shape our identities as individuals and societies. The faculty, students, and alumni of the CU Denver History Department craft historical narratives for both academic and public audiences from the evidence of those diverse pasts. We weave together the stories that we discover in archives, in published documents, as well as in the built environment and Western landscapes. Students learn to design and pursue their own research projects, track and analyze evidence, and then develop persuasive arguments for print and digital media.

SPECIALIZED TRAINING IN

- Public History
- Museums & Historic Preservation
- Gender, Race, & Ethnicity
- Global History
- American West
- Urban, Cultural, & Social History

Our program offers students the opportunity to engage with the breadth of human experience in a range of subjects and approaches. It teaches vital analytical, research and writing skills, and creates a community dedicated to upholding the value of historical studies in the public sphere and in relation to a broad range of human activities and decision making.

Find out more at historyincolorado.org

