

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL PRESENTS:
MASTER OF ARTS IN POLITICAL SCIENCE

WHY POLITICAL SCIENCE IS RIGHT FOR YOU

CU Denver offers a Master of Arts (MA) degree in political science designed to convey a variety of academic and practical skills. Students have the option of completing the traditional or alternative track centered on the study on politics, public policy and leadership.

CAREER PATHS OF GRADUATES

Our graduates work in a variety of sectors and positions including:

- Civil servants in state, local and federal government
- Activists in community-based organizations
- The national and international non-profit sector
- Primary, secondary, and higher education and academia
- The corporate sector

WHY CHOOSE CU DENVER?

The University of Colorado Denver Political Science program incorporates historical, quantitative, experimental, ethnographic, psychological, and creative methodologies that teach students to develop skills in critical analysis, research, writing and communication. These skills will help students become effective analysts of political, social and economic issues. Students are challenged to develop solutions to problems facing our society nationally and internationally.

SPECIALIZED TRAINING IN

Administration and Governance

Comparative Policy Analysis

Human Rights

Community Organizing

Regional Studies

Indigenous People's Rights

Urban Politics

Research and teaching in the department centers on the fields of American politics, comparative politics, international politics, political theory and public policy.

Find out more at cudenverpoliticalscience.org

